

PERMISSION TO USE IMAGE FORM

This form is designed to aid authors in obtaining permissions to use images as supplementary materials for their contributions to Canadian Literature (CanLit).

Please fill in the boxes that are appropriate to the image(s) you intend to use.

Article Title: _____

Canadian Literature issue # (and title if available): _____

Name of Author requesting permission(s): _____

Title of Source and/or Image Title:

Author/Artist(s): _____

Publisher (if applicable): _____

Page Number(s) and/or Location in Source (if applicable):

Location of where the Image was taken (if applicable): _____

Description of the Image:

Caption for the image:

Permission granted by Image Owner/Copyright Holder: Yes No

Terms and Conditions of permissions:

Canadian Literature's Intent for Use of the Image

The University of British Columbia, through its journal Canadian Literature (CanLit), intends to reproduce the Image(s) mentioned above as a part of the Author's written contribution to CanLit (the Article) to appear in the numbered print issue (stated above) of the CanLit journal and on their website, canlit.ca, (which is under a one [1] year open access embargo after which the articles will be available free of charge), and through three scholarly aggregators (EBSCO, Gale, and ProQuest) for distribution of the journal's content.

As a non-profit entity, CanLit aims to distribute materials across a range of media platforms, available internationally, to promote events and our journal with the highest concern for integrity and brand reputation.

Because CanLit is a non-profit entity, we are unable to offer any financial or administrative support in obtaining copyright permissions for images that accompany articles and are used in our journal. All image permissions and costs related to obtaining permissions or reproducing the Image(s) are the responsibility of the Author.

Permission to Use Image

By signing this form, the Image Owner/Copyright Holder grants CanLit permission to use the Image(s), mentioned above, in the print journal, on canlit.ca, and as they are made available through our aggregators. This also grants CanLit permission to use portions of the Article, in which the Image(s) appear, for news and publicity related purposes for public distribution.

In signing this form, the Author acknowledges that they have fulfilled any and all terms and conditions attached to the Image Owner/Copyright Holder's granting permission, and that CanLit has full permission to reproduce the above mentioned Image(s) in the print journal, on their website, and through their aggregators.

Signature: _____
(Image Owner/Copyright Holder)

Date: _____

Signature: _____
(The Author)

Date: _____

More information on copyright and fair usage can be read at copyright.ubc.ca or on our FAQs page.

Permission To Use Image Form FAQs:

Who needs to sign these forms?

Any author submitting images and/or graphics to Canadian Literature for publication as part of an article's necessary supplementary materials.

What are aggregators?

Aggregators distribute digital content, such as monographs, journal issues, or articles, to places where readers access them: libraries and retailers. Canadian Literature works with three aggregators—EBSCO, Gale, and ProQuest—to help make CanLit content available and discoverable to a wide variety of audiences.

How do the aggregators use images on their website(s)?

Aggregators follow fair-dealing guidelines. For example, the following is from EBSCO's website, listed under "What is EBSCO's policy regarding image usage rights?":

Copyrights of images are the property of the PUBLISHER and the images may not be copied or emailed to multiple sites or posted to a listserv without the copyright holder's express written permission. Images may be printed for personal, non-commercial use and used in presentations for educational use consistent with the Copyright Act of 1976, subject to any additional restrictions included in the copyright statement accompanying the image, but may not be posted on the Web or used in any other form of mass media without express written permission from the copyright holder.

And, from the Gale "Terms of Use" page, Copyright and Limitations of use are outlined in this way:

The subscribing institutes ("Customer") and their authorized users, may make a single print, non-electronic copy of a permitted portion of the content for personal, non-commercial, educational purposes only. Except as expressly provided for in the foregoing sentence, you may not modify, publish, transmit (including, but not limited to, by way of e-mail, facsimile or other electronic means), display, participate in the transfer or sale of, create derivative works based on, or in any other way exploit any of the Content, in whole or in part without the prior written consent of Gale and (if applicable) its licensor.

While ProQuest doesn't host specific information on how aggregators use images on their database, their Terms of Use page includes the following: "All other product names, company names, marks and logos referenced may be trademarks of their respective owners. Nothing herein should be construed as granting any license or right to any trademarks or Content without the written permission of ProQuest or respective third-party owners."